

Galvezia speciosa
Island Bush Snapdragon

Shrub
Sun to part shade
Moderate water
Origin: California

Galvezia is a California native shrub growing three feet high by 5 wide. Red snapdragon like flowers bloom in spring at the branch tips. It can have a scattering of flowers at any time of year. It is native to the Channel Islands. It is drought tolerant but looks better with some water. Cut back as needed in late winter. It can be kept cut as a low hedge like boxwood. It looks best spilling down a slope or over a wall. It can be planted in part shade under Oaks but it will flower less. It is a favorite humming bird plant.
