

Baccharis pilularis* 'Pigeon Point'

Dwarf Coyote Brush

Shrub

Full sun

Little water

Origin: California

A fast growing evergreen shrub, two feet high and six wide. It is a California native that provides food and habitat for wildlife. It will grow in a wide range of soils from sandy to clay. An excellent choice on slopes for erosion control. It has small white flowers in spring and summer.

Every three to five years prune it in January before new growth emerges. Cut as hard as needed to remove any accumulated thatch. Despite the name, it does not attract coyotes.
